

European University Studies

Maja Lubańska

Focus on Wh-Questions

PETER LANG

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	7
Introduction	9
Chapter 1: Wh-questions in Modern Linguistic Theory
1.0 Introduction	11
1.1 From GB to MP	11
1.2 Recent minimalism: Chomsky (1998, 1999)	16
1.3 Properties of wh -questions	18
1.3.1 Question types	18
1.3.2 Island constraints	21
1.3.3 More constraints on movement	23
1.3.4 Subject questions	28
1.4 Strategies of wh -question formation	29
1.5 Assumptions	32
Chapter 2: Multiple Wh-Fronting
2.0 Introduction	37
2.1 (No) Multiple COMP-filling accounts	38
2.2 Wh -cluster formation approach	45
2.3 Superiority effects	49
2.3.1 Bulgarian vs. Serbo-Croatian	49
2.3.2 Russian	56
2.4 Multiple wh -fronting in Polish	59
2.4.1 Superiority effects	60
2.4.2 Motivation for movement	66
2.4.3 Focus licensing positions	71
2.4.4 Discourse-linking	74
2.4.5 Clitic placement	79
2.5 Summary and conclusion	84
Chapter 3: Wh-Scope Marking Constructions
3.0 Introduction	87
3.1 Basic Facts	88
3.1.1 A typology of partial movement	88
3.1.2 General characteristics of the was...wh -construction	89
3.2 The scope marker	92
3.2.1 The three approaches	92
3.2.2 The nature of the scope marker in Polish	95

3.3 Wh -scope marking in Polish	100
3.3.1 Properties of the jak... wh -construction	100
3.3.2 Analysis	102
3.3.3 The long wh -scoping construction	109
3.4 A feature based account of partial wh -movement	115
3.4.1 Evidence	115
3.4.2 Partial wh -movement	119
3.5 Summary and conclusion	121
Chapter 4: Long-distance wh -extraction in Polish
4.0 Introduction	123
4.1 Previous accounts	125
4.1.1 Bounding theory approaches	125
4.1.2 A pre-minimalist approach	127
4.1.3 Minimalist approaches	130
4.1.3.1 Stepanov and Georgopoulos (1997)	130
4.1.3.2 Stepanov (2001)	134
4.2 The bare infinitival complement	135
4.3 The subjunctive complement	138
4.4 Summary and conclusion	143
Conclusion	145
References	147